APPENDIX 1

(This Appendix forms part of the Pricing Supplement to which it is attached)

RISK INFORMATION

Investors should read the entire Prospectus. Investing in the Notes may involve substantial risks and is suitable only for purchasers who have the knowledge and experience in financial and business matters necessary to enable them to evaluate the risks and the merits of an investment in the Notes. Prior to making an investment decision, prospective investors should consider carefully, in light of their own financial circumstances and investment objectives, (i) all the information set forth in this Pricing Supplement. Prospective investors should make such enquiries as they deem necessary, including (without limitation) with their own financial, tax and legal advisers, without relying on the Bank or the Dealer.

The risk factor entitled “Exchange rate risks and exchange controls” in the Prospectus is replaced by the following:

Exchange Rate risk and exchange controls

The Bank will pay principal and interest on the Notes in (a) the Specified Currency or (b) if the alternative currency payment provisions apply as set out under “An investment in Notes is subject to currency risk” above, in U.S. dollars (such relevant currency of payment being, the “Settled Currency”). This presents certain risks relating to currency conversions if an investor’s financial activities are denominated principally in a currency or currency unit (the “Investor’s Currency”) other than the Settled Currency. These include the risk that exchange rates may significantly change (including changes due to devaluation of the Settled Currency or revaluation of the Investor’s Currency) and the risk that authorities with jurisdiction over the Settled Currency or the Investor’s Currency may impose or modify exchange controls. An appreciation in the value of the Investor’s Currency relative to the Settled Currency would decrease (1) the Investor’s Currency-equivalent yield on the Notes, (2) the Investor’s Currency-equivalent value of the principal payable on the Notes and (3) the Investor’s Currency-equivalent market value of the Notes.

Government and monetary authorities may impose (as some have done in the past) exchange controls or monetary policies that could adversely affect an applicable currency exchange rate or interest rate. As a result, investors may receive less interest or principal than expected, or no interest or principal or receive payments in a significantly devalued Settled Currency.

The additional risk factors set out below must be read in conjunction with the relevant Risk Factors set out in the Prospectus on pages 27 to 82, and in particular including the section headed “Senior Notes denominated in Renminbi are subject to additional risks” on pages 65 to 67 thereof.

The Notes are not suitable for all investors

An investor should reach a decision to invest in the Notes after carefully considering, in conjunction with his or her advisors, the suitability of the Notes in light of his or her investment objectives and the other information set out in the Pricing Supplement and in the Prospectus.

There can be no assurance that the Notes will show any positive return. Moreover, the value of an investment in the Notes may diminish over time owing to inflation and other factors that adversely affect the present value of future payments. Accordingly, an investment in the Notes may result in a lower return when compared to other investment alternatives. The Notes are designed for investors who are prepared to hold the Notes to maturity. Prospective purchasers should take into account certain risks associated with an investment in the Notes which are described under “Risk Factors” in the Prospectus, as well as any additional risks described in the Pricing Supplement.

Liquidity and early sale risk

There is currently no established trading market for the Notes, and one may never develop. Accordingly, investors must be prepared to hold their Notes until maturity. There may not be any (or there may only be a very limited) secondary market for the Notes. Investors who cannot accept that the secondary market is limited in this way should not invest in the Notes. None of the Issuer, the Dealer, or any other person intends to create, or is obliged to create, a secondary trading market for the Notes. There is no guarantee that a secondary market will exist.

Investors seeking to liquidate/sell positions in the Notes prior to the stated Maturity Date may receive substantially less than their original purchase price.

Early Redemption for Illegality, Special Circumstance or Disruption Event at the option of the Issuer

Upon the occurrence of an Illegality, a Special Circumstance or a Disruption Event as provided in paragraphs 24, 25 and 26 of Part A of the Pricing Supplement, the Issuer may redeem the Notes early upon the payment to each Noteholder of an amount in respect of each equal to the fair market value of each Note in accordance with the terms of paragraph 30 of Part A of the Pricing Supplement. In such circumstances, the Notes may be redeemed prior to the Maturity Date for substantially less than their original purchase price or originally expected principal and interest amounts and may not pay any accrued interest.

Reinvestment Risk

If the Notes are redeemed early prior to a scheduled maturity following an Illegality, a Special Circumstance, a Disruption Event, for taxation reasons or upon the occurrence of an Event of Default, an investor may not be able to reinvest the proceeds at an effective interest rate as high as the interest rate or yield (or potential interest rate or yield) on the Notes being redeemed and may only be able to do so at a significantly lower rate. Investors should consider such reinvestment risk in light of the investments available.

Adjustments by the Calculation Agent

The terms and conditions of the Notes allow the Calculation Agent to make adjustments or take any other appropriate action if circumstances occur where the Notes or any calculations or other acts thereunder are affected by disruption events, adjustment events or circumstances affecting normal activities.

A Note's purchase price may not reflect its inherent value

Prospective investors in the Notes should be aware that the purchase price of a Note does not necessarily reflect its inherent value. Any difference between a Note's purchase price and its inherent value may be due to a number of different factors including, without limitation, prevailing market conditions and fees, discounts or commissions paid or earned by the various parties involved in structuring and/or distributing the Note. For further information prospective investors should refer to the party from whom they are purchasing the Notes. Prospective investors may also wish to seek an independent valuation of Notes prior to their purchase.

Tax Treatment

The tax treatment of any amount to be paid to the Noteholder in relation to the Notes may reduce such Noteholder's effective yield on the Notes.

Significant tax aspects of the tax treatment of the Notes may be uncertain. In addition, tax treatment may change before the maturity or redemption of the Notes. Prospective investors should consult their tax advisers about their own tax treatment.

Investors should consult their own tax advisors with respect to their particular circumstances.

Credit Risk

Investors in the Notes are exposed to the credit risk of the Issuer, which may vary over the term of the Notes.

Leverage Risk

Borrowing to fund the purchase of the Notes ('external leveraging') can have a significant negative impact on the value of and return on the investment. Investors considering leveraging the Notes in this manner should obtain further detailed information as to the applicable risks from the leverage provider. If the investor obtains external leverage for the investment, the investor should make sure it has sufficient liquid assets to meet the margin requirements in the event of market movements adverse to the investor's position. In such case, if the investor does not make the margin payments then the investor's investment in the Notes may be liquidated with little or no notice.

Compounding of Risks

An investment in the Notes involves risks and should only be made after assessing the direction, timing and magnitude of potential future market changes (e.g. in the value of the reference underlyings, interest rates, etc.), as well as the terms and conditions of the Notes. More than one risk factor may have simultaneous effects with regard to the Notes such that the effect of a particular risk factor may not be predictable. In addition, more than one risk factor may have a compounding effect, which may not be predictable. No assurance can be given as to the effect that any combination of risk factors may have on the value of the Notes.

No reliance

Each holder of the Notes may not rely on the Issuer, the Dealer, or any of their respective affiliates in connection with its determination as to the legality of its acquisition of the Notes.

Prospective investors should refer to the Prospectus relating to the Issuer's Program and the Pricing Supplement relating to the Notes for further risk factor and sales restriction information, including the above risk factor about liquidity and early sale.
